VERTICAL BALER:

Best for low volume applications, a vertical baler requires manual cycling and tying. It is an economical alternative when space, cost and volume do not warrant an automatic baler.

HORIZONTAL BALER: CLOSED DOOR MANUAL TIE

Best for medium volume applications, a horizontal manual tie baler is equipped with electronic eye sensors for automatic cycles but the bales require manual tying. A closed end baler gives a fixed length to the bale.

HORIZONTAL BALER: OPEN END AUTO TIE

Best for high volume applications, a horizontal auto tie baler provides maximum output with minimal labor. They are equipped with electronic eye sensors that cycle and tie the bales automatically with no operator involvement except for taking away the finished bales.
